Below are the straightforward steps to build a printable that suits your needs. Each stage is designed to keep the process quick while maximizing the sheet's usefulness. Select a Base Layout – Start with a blank PDF or spreadsheet. The image below illustrates a clean, column-driven template that can be adapted for any league format. Define the Metrics You Care About – Choose columns for team names, scores, total yards, turnovers, and any advanced stat (e.g., third-down conversion rate). Keep the number of columns to a manageable 5-7 to avoid clutter. Populate Game-by-Game Data – Input the Week 8 matchups, then fill in results as the games finish. This can be done manually after each game or imported from a CSV if you're comfortable.
